Revolutionary songs at Kerala temple fest, devaswom board calls for probe

Singer Aloshi and temple fest organising committee secretary Rahul say the songs were sung on demand from the audience

SHAJU PHILIP THIRUVANANTHAPURAM,

MARCH15

A MUSICAL event held at a Kerala temple, which comes under the state-run Travancore Devaswom Board (TDB), has run into controversy after revolutionary songs associated with the CPI(M)-affiliated Democratic Youth Federation of India (DYFI) were among those played. The TDB on Saturday sought a report from the festival organising committee of the Devi Temple at Kadakkal in Kollam district and asked for a vigilance probe into the incident, which took place on March 10.

TDB president PS Prasanth said, "We have sought a report from the temple about the circumstances under which songs associated with a political organisation were sung at the temple festival. The High Court had earlier given a clear direction to the board to ensure that no symbols or flags of political parties are displayed at temple premises. If there are lapses, action will be taken against those concerned." The incident took place during the annual temple festival. During the festival, singer Aloshi Adam sang songs that are popularly sung during events of the CPI(M) and DYFI. While Aloshi was singing the songs, an LED screen behind him showed the flag and symbol of the DYFI, which irked a section of the audience.

Aloshi and temple festival organising committee's secretary, Rahul, said the songs were sung on demand from the audience. "The local traders body was the sponsor of the musical programme. During any such event, the audience will demand their favourite songs. We will oblige to their demands," he said. The incident led to protest from the Congress, with Opposition Leader

VD Satheesan saying, "It has to be suspected that the CPI(M) and DYFI wanted to foment trouble at the temple and make way for the BJP. The temple is not the place for singing revolutionary songs. Power has made the party arrogant."

In the last month, Kannur district has witnessed two incidents of clashes between the CPI(M) and the BJP during temple festivals in Thalassery region.
