Rioters

hands on. Frenzied groups, armed with sticks, stones and rods, were seen thrashing people on the road in Maujpur and also venting their ire on e-rickshaws and other vehicles.

This, even as there was some police presence.

Police appeared to have a hands-off approach, except to occasionally turn their focus on anti-CAA protesters. However, they were successful in keeping the mobs from Jafrabad and Maujpur away from each other.

At about 1.30 pm, a man from the pro-CAA group of rioters pulled out a pistol to fire multiple shots at the rival group, and some others joined him.

Some in the anti-CAA mob, who too were armed, fired multiple rounds. Streets in many parts of the area were littered with stones, bricks and burnt tyres, mute testimony to the spiralling violence and bloodshed that took on a communal taint on Monday, including about 150 people, including 48 police personnel.

This was the third day of rioting in and around this locality. But rioters were better prepared this time. They continued to target journalists trying to record the violence on their mobile phone. One man even snatched this reporter's notebook and tore several pages.

A journalist with JK 24X7 news received a bullet injury and two reporters from NDTV were beaten and punched by rioters. Many other journalists took to social media to share tales of how they were heckled and some alleged they were questioned about their religious identity.

The arsonists were also better armed on Tuesday—with sticks, rods, hockey sticks, and more. At one spot, protesters—quite a few of them women—erected a tricolor at an intersection near the Maujpur Metro station. They turned an abandoned police jeep into a dump to hide their weapons.

A loudspeaker set up close to the Maujpur Metro station was relaying provocative messages, including by a woman who egged on others to take down their rivals, even as police personnel stood by.

As tension smouldered in the city's northeast, rioters damaged two fire tenders in Gokulpuri and crowds raising incendiary slogans set on fire a bike in the epicentre of the trouble Maujpur.

Schools were shut and fearful residents stayed indoors as restless crowds roamed the streets, seemingly unmindful of prohibitory orders restricting the assembly of more than four people imposed by police on Monday.

Police sources told PTI that 48 police personnel and 98 civilians were injured in Monday's clashes between pro- and anti-CAA groups at Jafrabad, Maujpur, Chandbagh, Khureji Khas and Bhajanpura. Three firemen also received injuries while dousing flames in the area.

Back on Raisina Hill, the seat of the central government, Amit Shah convened a meeting with Delhi Lieutenant Governor Anil Bajjal, chief minister Arvind Kejriwal, Delhi Police chief Amulya Patnaik and others to address the situation. The meeting resolved that workers of political parties should join hands to restore peace and peace committees should be reactivated in all localities.

With Trump in the city, Delhi Police ramped up security in the area. It is being assisted by paramilitary personnel. Officials said police personnel are talking to local peace committees in a bid to restore amity.

"Mischievous-makers are being dealt with strictly on the spot," a senior official told PTI.

Though one person seen brandishing a gun on Monday has been identified, police has detained him but not officially identified him. There have been no arrests yet.

The death toll climbed to nine—eight civilians and Delhi Police head constable Ratan Lal—on Tuesday, a senior police official said. While Lal died of injuries sustained during stone pelting in Chand Bagh, it is not yet clear what killed the others or who they all were.

Five stations on the Delhi Metro's Pink Line were closed for the second consecutive day on Tuesday in the wake of the trouble. Deputy commissioner of police (Shahdara) Amit Sharma underwent an operation on Monday night for the head injury sustained during the clashes.

Shortage of forces led to violence aggravating: Delhi Police to MMA

New Delhi, Feb 25 (PTI) The Delhi Police told the Union Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) on Tuesday that it did not have adequate forces to immediately control the violence that hit parts of Delhi claiming nine lives, including that of a policeman, officials said.

The non-availability of adequate forces was conveyed by Delhi Police Commissioner Amulya Patnaik during his meeting with the top brass of the MHA.

The Delhi Police told the MHA that it did not have adequate forces to control the northeast Delhi violence immediately, which led to the situation getting aggravated, a senior official said.

It also conveyed to the MHA that it was deploying a battalion (around 1,000 personnel) of its armed police in the violence-hit areas, he added.

Another official said the police was provided with a total of 35 companies of paramilitary forces, of which 20 companies were given to it in the last three days to enhance the security of the national capital during US President Donald Trump's visit.

A head constable was among the nine persons killed and at least 50 people, including paramilitary and Delhi Police personnel, were injured as violence spiralled over the amended citizenship law in northeast Delhi on Monday.

Frenzied protesters torched houses, shops, vehicles and a petrol pump, besides hurling stones at security personnel.

damage to a large section of people is a fit case for class-action suits. Instead of multiple of claims coming to court, a single case can be a more efficient way of dealing with the problem," said Sriram Panchu, a Chennai-based lawyer, who specialises in mediation.

According to Panchu, the much-needed provision of mediation under the new law is fit for cases where damages are payable in monetary terms. It can cut prolonged legal battles, he said.

The new law overrides the older Consumer Protection Act 1986, which provided for national consumer dispute redressal courts and commissions. Previously, consumers had to approach such platforms, but there were no clear rules on product recalls, a legal meaning of product liability, which confers post-purchase obligations for a product-maker, as well as rules for mass recalls. Moreover, lack of any provision for mediation meant long-drawn court battles were the only recourse for dispute settlement.

According to the new law, the consumer protection authority has powers to first initiate class action and then enforce recall, refund and return of products. If such mass defects are proven, the manufacturer's liability and onus of product recall—whereby the maker recalls or fixes the fault—have also been defined in the new law.

At the state level, district collectors have been empowered to probe complaints that affect the interests of consumers as a class.

The new law additionally defines "unfair contract" between a manufacturer or trader or service provider on the one hand and a consumer on the other. Legal recourse will now be available in such cases where an "unfair contract" causes "significant change" in the rights of a consumer. These include a manifestly excessive security deposit or a penalty to be paid to a manufacturer or a service provider which is disproportionate to the losses caused.

"The new law expands the scope of consumer protection by introducing two new concepts, namely product liability and product recall. Moreover, it defines the consumer and manufacturer for the first time. It also covers online transactions," said Maurice Fernandez of the Bangalore-based Citizens' Collective for a Safer Marketplace.

"We had a fruitful meeting with the consumer affairs minister Ram Vilas Paswan on various aspects of implementing the new Consumer Protection Act 2019 earlier this month," said Rajendra Singh of the All-India PET Products Manufacturers' Association.

Chartered flight for Indians

ment," the embassy tweeted on Monday.

Passengers showing no signs of the potentially deadly disease started disembarking from the ship after the quarantine period ended last week. Over 1,000 passengers and crew still remain on board the ship.

The ship was quarantined after a passenger who disembarked last month in Hong Kong was found to be a carrier of the disease.

The Indian embassy had on Saturday said that Indians, who are still on board the ship, will be tested for the virus infection along with others after all the healthy passengers have disembarked.

Seventy-one new coronavirus deaths were reported from China, the epicentre of the disease, taking the total number of casualties to 2,663, while the number of confirmed cases rose to 77,658.

Trump on religious freedom

Islamic terrorism.

"In this effort, the US is also working productively with Pakistan to confront terrorists who operate on its soil," Trump said.

Trump steered clear of the controversial Citizenship (Amendment) Act, saying it is up to India. Addressing a press conference later in the day, Trump said he discussed at length the issue of religious freedom with Modi.

"We did talk about religious freedom. I will say that the Prime Minister was incredible and he told me that he wants people to have religious freedom. He told me that in India they have worked very hard to have great and open religious freedom. If we look back and look at what's going relative to other places...they have really worked hard on religious freedom," Trump said.

The US President also said that PM Modi told him that he is working very closely with the Muslims, who have seen rise in their population from 14 million to 200 million now.

Trump said he talked about his country's peace deal with the Taliban with Modi, and said that India will like to see it happen. He also repeated his offer of mediation to ease the tension between India and Pakistan, saying he has good relations with the leaders of both the countries.

"Anything I can do to mediate or help, I would do. They (Pakistan) are working on Kashmir. Kashmir has been a thorn in lots of people's sight for a long time. There are two sides to every story," Trump told reporters here.

Pollution

luted cities during 2019, "21 are located in India, 27 in South Asia, and all the top 30 cities are within greater Asia". The numbers are a slight improvement over 2018, but the report adds that it is largely due to a slower economic growth.

"Whilst cities in India, on average, exceed the WHO target for annual PM2.5 exposure by 500%, national air pollution decreased by 20% from 2018 to 2019, with 98% of cities experiencing improvements. These improvements are believed to be largely a result of economic slow-down," the report said.

Several Chinese cities, including Beijing, have dramatically improved their air quality in recent years. Beijing, once synonymous with images of a metropolis shrouded in toxic smog, had an average PM2.5 concentration of 42.1µg/m³—less than half of Delhi's 98.6µg/m³.

In the rankings part of the report, Delhi was the fifth most polluted city while its suburb Ghaziabad occupied the first rank. One Chinese city and two from Pakistan were the others in the top five.

India, China and other Asian countries remain disproportionately affected by toxic air as a result of factors ranging from crowded cities and vehicular exhaust fumes to coal-fired power plants, agricultural burning and industrial emissions.

The World Health Organization estimates that dirty air kills around 7 million people each year, while the World Bank says it drains the global economy of $5 trillion annually. The deadly air also kills roughly 1.2 million Indians each year, according to a recent study in the Lancet.

Across much of northern India, air quality remains catastrophic in the pre-winter and winter months when farmers take to burning crop residue as a cheap and quick way to clear their fields. The result is a toxic haze that has, in its worst episodes, caused schools to be shut down and vulnerable people to be restricted to living indoors.

"In Beijing, it's a priority—in China, when they say something, they do it, they put the resources in," said Yann Bouquillon, Air Visual's director of air quality monitoring, news agency Bloomberg reported. "In India, it's just starting. People need to put more pressure on government."

India, however, was far from the only country that remained deeply challenged by smog. Although several Chinese cities— including Shanghai— saw improvement in air quality, Kashgar and Hotan in the restive, western Xinjiang region were among the world's worst.

Cities across Asia—including Chiang Mai, Hanoi, Jakarta and Seoul— saw sharp increases in PM2.5 levels. The problem is particularly challenging for South Asian countries. Using a weighted population average, Bangladesh was actually ranked the world's most polluted country, while its capital Dhaka was the second worst after Delhi.

Pakistan was the second-most polluted country, while Afghanistan, India and Nepal were all in the top 10.
